Geology of the Ice Age Trail

12,000 to 18,000 years ago, monstrous ice sheets, over two miles thick at their point of origin, stretched from northern Canada to cover much of Wisconsin and North America. Mounds of glacial material were deposited at the forward edge of the glacier, forming the terminal moraine. The Ice Age Trail follows this moraine for much of its 1200 miles.

Our Mission

The Ice Age National and State Scenic Trail is one of ten Congressionally-designated National Scenic Trails located throughout the United States. The Trail meanders through 31 counties and is within 15 miles of nearly two million Wisconsin residents.

The Ice Age Trail Alliance is a non-profit organization that works in partnership with the National Park Service, the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, other units of government, concerned citizens, landowners, businesses and community-based organizations.

Our Vision

The Ice Age Trail is a continuous footpath through diverse landscapes that:

- Provides superlative outdoor recreation experiences;
- Preserves and commemorates world renowned geological features formed during the Wisconsin Glaciation;
- Provides a natural corridor that protects habitat and enables the movement of wildlife;
- Serves as a lifelong educational resource;
- Provides quiet places for people to form and nurture a spiritual connection with the landscape;
- Promotes the health and vigor of users of all ages and abilities, and
- Links the history and diverse human cultures of the land that we call Wisconsin.

Openings for Volunteers

Without volunteers, the Ice Age Trail would be little more than a line on a map. Annually over 5,000 individuals donate more than 65,000 hours of their free-time to developing the Ice Age Trail as a premier hiking trail. Organized into 20+ local chapters, volunteers are the heart, hands and soul of the Ice Age Trail Alliance.

Volunteers construct and maintain trail tread, install signs, lead hikes and field trips, coordinate fundraisers, and assist in land stewardship.

A great deal of work remains before the Ice Age Trail is complete. But the fruits of volunteer projects are evident along almost 600 miles of existing Trail. Volunteers are a part of history in the making!
